The Future South.
With improved economic conditions at home and a less threatening race problem the south will perhaps be no longer subject to that ruinous drain of her energetic and ambitious youth to the cities of the north, and, on the other hand, the south will receive an increasing immigration of young men from the north and west eager to share in her rich but ill developed natural opportunities, says E. N. Vallandigham in June Atlantic. Finally, if the boast that the Anglo-Saxon race is peculiarly gifted in the realms of politics and the higher imagination be justified, our man of the Midi has a great future, for not only is he almost pure Anglo-Saxon, but his race has been warmed by the generous warmth of his own semitropical sunshine. He is a blend of reason and passion new to the world of endeavor and service.

COUNTER CONSPIRACY

Suggested by the Defense in the Haywood Case.

UNDERGOES TRYING ORDEAL

Harry Orchard Subjected to a Severe Cross-Examination—Two Additional Crimes Added to the Long List of Those to Which He Has Confessed.

Boise, Ida., June 11.—Into the further cross-examination of Harry Orchard, counsel for William D. Haywood repeatedly threw the suggestion of a great counter conspiracy formulated and carried out by the enemies of the Western Federation of Miners and indicated a determination to construct their main line of defense on that line.

They carried Orchard by slow steps and through the minutest details from the dynamiting of the Independence station down to the attempt on the life of Fred Bradley and his family and in addition to a series of particular attacks on the credibility of the witness and the general probability of his stories and preparing the way for their own testimony in rebuttal, they sought to show that Orchard has a mania for boasting of the commission of crimes nonexistent except in his own mind and that he is testifying under the control and suggestion of Detective McPartland.

They began by making it clear that as far as Orchard knew of his own knowledge, Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone had nothing to do with the inspiration, planning and execution of the Vindicator explosion and that Haywood and Moyer had nothing to do with the planning of the murder of Detective Gregory.

Passing then to the dynamiting of the Independence station, the first crime with which the testimony of Orchard directly connects Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, they endeavored to show that Orchard in springing the mine had purposely sought to spare the oncoming train and the nonunion men who were expected and that the whole plot was engineered by agents of the mine owners and railway managers, who wanted a comparatively harmless "outrage" to injure the union miners who were on strike.

Leaving the Independence station crime, which was followed by the flight of Orchard into Wyoming and then by his unexpected return to Denver, counsel for the defense sought to discredit the story that Haywood directed Orchard to kill Andy Mayberry by showing that Haywood and Mayberry are old and intimate friends.

Revolting Story of Orchard.

Getting down to the Bradley crime, the attorneys devoted themselves largely to the revolting story of Orchard's attempt to poison the entire Bradley household, including the infant child, which he had seen in a baby carriage, and Mrs. Crow, the cook, with whom he had made friends and whom he had accompanied to a theater.

Into stronger relief than had been the direct examination they threw the utter depravity of the witness and gave the watching crowd the one deep noted thrill of an otherwise weary day. Orchard swore that while in San Francisco he repeatedly received money from Pettibone, who used the name of "Pat Bone" in transmitting it, and in making this clearer the defense gave evidence of a plan to show that this money was sent under Pettibone's name thinly disguised by persons plotting against the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners.

Orchard denied that mine owners or railway men had any part in the Independence station outrage; denied that he had a mania for confessing uncommitted crimes and denied that he is under the influence of McPartland.

He showed some spirit in answering many of Attorney Richardson's questions, but he firmly held to all of his first stories and was calm and certain throughout the long, trying examination.

Two more crimes were brought home to Orchard; he confessed that he burned a cheese factory in Ontario to get $800 insurance and he confessed that he began his life of crime by selling cheese at short weight. Counsel for the state let the examination take its course without a single serious objection and at the close privately signified their entire satisfaction. Orchard has been on the stand five days and has fully two more to serve.

Steve Adams is a tenant of Ada county jail and a close cell neighbor of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone. He is for the present noncommunicative and his custodians say that he is sullen and will refuse to say a word when he is called to the stand.

JAPS RAISE A FUND

Those on the Pacific Coast Fill Coffers of Progressives.

NATURALIZATION THEIR AIM

Report of Charles Takahashi Reveals Objects of the Agitators—Secretary of War Taft Says There Will Be No Armed Conflict.

Washington, June 11.—Thousands of dollars are being raised by the Japanese of the Pacific coast to carry out the compact they have entered into with the Progressive party of Japan for the overthrow of the Saionji ministry, the annulment of the exclusion clause in the immigration bill and the guarantee of the naturalization rights of the Japanese subjects residing in this country. These additional facts in the international plot are vouched for in semi-official circles. The enormous fund that is being collected will be used to arouse a feeling in the Japanese empire antagonistic to the American government.

Notwithstanding the sweeping denial of the existence of the alliance between the Japanese of the Pacific coast and the Progressives, the anti-administration party in Japan, given out by Charles Takahashi of Seattle, Wash., the Associated Press has secured the texts of certain reports that he forwarded to Yamaoka in Seattle and to the Japanese society of Seattle.

In one of the reports, which it is authoritatively stated was afterward read by Takahashi at a secret meeting of Japanese in Seattle on the evening of May 26, he quotes Ambassador Aoki's statement in regard to the relations between the United States and Japan growing out of recent disturbances in San Francisco and the adoption by the congress of the United States of the immigration law excluding coolie labor from continental United States. Takahashi's report, in part, is as follows:

"My object in discussing the Japanese immigration limitation law with Ambassador Aoki, was:

"First—The nullification of the present immigration limitation law.

Opposed to Contemplated Law.

"Second—Opposing the would-be immigration law (proposed new treaty) said to be contemplated by Japan and the United States.

"Third—Acquiescence in the Japanese naturalization rights in the United States.

"To these discussions Ambassador Aoki said:

"Japan has ample grounds to oppose the immigration limitation law, but if we go to extremes I fear war. Regarding this Japanese limitation law the Japanese government absolutely disagrees with the United States and will ask the naturalization rights for the Japanese people, which the United States government will have to eventually grant. At present the re-election of a parliament is nearing, so we are hesitating at this time to bring up these questions, which are unpopular in American politics."

"What we must call especial attention to is the fundamental antagonistic statements that the embassy made compared with those of Secretary Strauss (interview on May 17). We cannot ourselves be satisfied with such uncertainty and the contradictory statements."

Before the departure of Takahashi from this city he sent to Yamaoka, who had not then sailed for Japan, a report in which he told of a conference with Secretary of Commerce and Labor Strauss on May 7 regarding the immigration laws. In this report, Takahashi quoted statements made by Secretary Strauss, which he said were directly contrary to those made by Ambassador Aoki as to the agreement of the two governments on the clause excluding Japanese coolie laborers from this country.

NO WAR WITH JAPAN.

Secretary Taft Says There Is No Danger of Conflict.

Milwaukee, June 11.—Secretary of War William H. Taft in an interview here said there will be no war with Japan. He said that the United States and Japan will continue their way along most peacefully together. The secretary said:

"War with Japan? Don't you believe it. Never mind the news that keeps coming. It doesn't always mean all that it seems to on the surface. We will have no war with Japan, you may rest assured of that. You can quote me emphatically as saying that I have an abiding faith that the United States and Japan will continue their way along most peacefully together. You can rest assured of that. Never mind the scare head dispatches."

"The complaint of Mrs. Ayers against officials at West Point and the report that she has included me personally in the affair? On this subject I have nothing whatever to say beyond the statement that the proper department of the government has taken the matter up."

TAFT IN MILWAUKEE.

Secretary of War Receives a Cordial Welcome in That City.

Milwaukee, June 11.—"Secretary of War William H. Taft is big enough and broad enough to fill any position which the American people may call upon him to fill," was the keynote of an address of welcome by Governor James O. Davidson on behalf of the state of Wisconsin at the banquet at the Hotel Pfister given in honor of the distinguished secretary of war.

Mayor Sherburn M. Becker, welcoming the guest of honor on behalf of Milwaukee, referred to Ohio's many favorite sons and said they were by no means in the silent majority. Secretary Taft, he said, had become in the past few years a personage known and appreciated by all classes. To Secretary Taft more than to any other human being, the mayor said, is the country indebted at this time for our island possessions.

Secretary Taft delivered a lengthy address on the history of the Panama canal and was frequently and enthusiastically applauded. Three hundred citizens of all shades of politics sat at the banquet board.

The Japs seem to be itching for trouble with the United States. If they get it they will find that it is not a decadent autocracy they are monkeying with.

There is one thing certain that man Orchard is a fiend incarnate or the worst liar that ever existed. There will be no mistake made when he is put on if he gets the limit.

The lawn-hog is still abroad in that city says the Fargo Call. The species is not unknown to this city we are sorry to say, but with the Fargo paper we think that the man or woman who will trample down the lawn of another is entitled to no better title.

FOLLOWING the supreme court decision in the St. Cloud case, the mayor of St. Paul, ordered the lid screwed down tight last Sunday, and now the mayors of St. Cloud, Duluth and other places have issued orders for the lid in those places. The attorney general guessed about right when he said the moral effect of the decision would probably cause the enforcement of the laws in the future without any further action on the part of his office. The average municipal executive doesn't like to be ousted from office, to say nothing about the penalty that might be imposed for the non-enforcement of the law.

SAN FRANCISCO
AS IT IS TODAY.

Visitor's Impressions a Year After the Great Disaster.

CITY LIKE VAST BOILER SHOP

Skyscrapers Rising on Every Side. Slowly Rehabilitating Herself, Though Beset by Sore Trials—Nob Hill Thing of the Past—Business Shifted.

Scribbled in pencil on the walls of the temporary structure occupied by one of San Francisco's leading hotels is this:

"I came, saw and went. Too bad! Too bad! Poor old San Francisco! How I used to love you!"

This is evidently the outpouring from the fullness of heart of some tourist on his first visit after the earthquake and fire, says a San Francisco special dispatch to the New York Herald. The sad sentiment thus expressed is universal among those who knew the old "Paris of the Pacific coast," but the visitor who felt the first shock more than a year ago and who is returning to the scene has another standard with which to make comparison. He has memories of miles of smoking ruins, of debris blocked streets, of crowded refugee camps, of long and winding bread lines, of soldiers at every turn, of a city desolate and stunned. Such a person is looking for indications of the progress of a year and has a different viewpoint. His comparisons are all with the worst which could be.

Leaving San Francisco two weeks after the earthquake and returning now for the first time, this was my attitude of mind. Coming in on a belated train, it was long after midnight as I stood on the bow of the ferryboat, circling in on the rising tide. Beside me stood an old San Franciscan.

"I used to follow the sea," said this man, "and I know nearly every prominent point on the globe. There's only one other harbor which will compare with this magnificent bay. That's Valparaiso, Chile. This bay alone will rescue San Francisco. It's going to be a long, hard struggle, but we'll win."

"I'm obliged to be away from home a great deal, and every time I come back as I get aboard the ferry I look across the bay for the lights, and I can tell something about the progress which has been made while I have been gone. Each time the circle of light increases. I've been gone about two months now, and I can see that a strip about a mile wide has been added. It looks good to me."

There are hotel accommodations in San Francisco now, and one may live in comfort even if he does have to walk 200 feet from his room to get a bath. Although the noted Palace hotel is a mere hole in the ground, the Fairmont hotel is in operation, other hotels have started up in the best accommodations to be obtained, and the St. Francis, formerly given much to vaunting over the luxuries of its lofty structure, is housed in a one story frame building which rambles over Union square and creeps up to the base of the monument commemorating Dewey's victory. The walls of the hotel are of board. Wherefore one learns many things about his neighbors.

There is no late sleep on a week day morning in the hotels of San Francisco. The din is of one vast boiler shop miles square. As the visitor dresses and goes about he sees the steel frames of skyscrapers rising on every side. From each comes the chorus of hammers. It is hammer, hammer, hammer, on the steel until one is almost inclined to step his ears. It is said not fewer than 10,000 men are hammering during each working day.

Despite the rising towers of steel about the business section the streets at first blush look almost the same as they did a year ago. Here are the blackened and half crumpled walls of brick, the foundation holes filled with debris, wide spaces of ruins, sidewalks blocked with heaps of stone and brick and streets so full of holes and dusty that money spent in getting shoes shined is absolutely wasted.

Gongs of trolley cars and cable cars, manned by strike breakers, are heard along Market street, but there is a steady procession of wagons equipped with temporary seats and loaded down with men and women. Trailing on a rope in the car is a soap box or an improvised ladder by which the passengers climb into the jolting vehicle. Although a banner on the side of each informs the onlooker that the vehicle is "by order of carmen's union; fare 10 cents," and reminds him that it is a result of the street car strike that these things are, the whole scene is strangely reminiscent of the long procession of wagons loaded with refugees that poured along in the midst of heavily laden, trudging pedestrians seeking escape to the ferry a little more than one year ago.

"It looks like almost the same San Francisco I left shortly after the fire," I remarked to a resident the first morning after arrival.

"Come with me and see if it is," he said, and he led the way to the top floor of the Merchants' Exchange building, in California street, between Montgomery and Sansome streets, where workmen were busy on the various floors.

"One year ago this building seemed to be damaged comparatively slightly," was suggested. "People were saying it would be ready for occupancy again in two or three months. Why the delay?"

"Strikes and delay in getting material," was the reply of the resident. And this applies generally. Looking down on the city the change is more apparent than it is from any one place in the streets. Rising out of the vast beds of debris like mushrooms are hundreds of low buildings of brick, frame or cement, with here and there a lofty structure of "Class A."

Seemingly almost underneath is the new Chinatown. The picturesque and mysterious old frame shacks, long so alluring to tourists, were licked up by the flames of April 18, 1906, which left behind deep foundation holes and underground passages choked with debris. Now conventional two and three story brick or cement buildings are rising on the old sites, and the sons of the orient are preparing to move back into structures which suggest some staid country village more than they do pagodas, pigstails, girl slaves and opium dens.

The clock on the ferry building, which so long by its motionless hands bore mute evidence that a calamity had struck a great city at sixteen minutes after 5 o'clock, again keeps track of the hour in a tower which has been rehabilitated from a scrowful state of semi-ruin, and the pole of the time ball, once bent, is again erect.

Along Market street and elsewhere in the heart of the city as viewed from the lofty pinnacles can be seen the low, flat topped promontories of the makeshift business blocks. Some are of brick, and some are of cement. Over in the wholesale district, in the Mission and elsewhere in the circle within the range of vision these same protuberances dot the landscape of desolation. From above they look thickly sown. There are a few tall buildings nearly ready for occupancy and some towers of steel in various stages of construction, but they are far from numerous amid the flat topped mushrooms.

A ride about the city in an automobile gives ample evidence that despite her sore tribulations San Francisco is still populous and busy. Throngs pour along all streets, wandering about piles of lumber, brick and stone, circling dangerous holes, plunging through dust and climbing steps to pass on temporary sidewalks over the obstructions. Market street, with the ferry at its foot, still has the bulk of the traffic, although only a start has been made on rebuilding.

"To lease." "To lease." The sign is everywhere. "This ground to lease." "This store to lease." On the one, two and three story buildings, which are practically the only structures in Market street ready for occupancy, are the signs "To lease." On heaps of debris at every hand more signs read, "A class A building will be erected on this site. For plans and particulars see So-and-so, real estate agents."

After the old business district had been wiped out by fire it was freely predicted that Fillmore street would be "the new Market street." But Van Ness avenue, the line of demarcation between the unburned and the devastated districts, promptly put in a claim for a part of the transferred business. All along the beautiful boulevard, formerly lined with aristocratic homes, sprang up the flat topped mushrooms.

of business places, and many retail dry goods stores and similar establishments took up their quarters there, paying enormous rents.

Not so very long ago merchants went almost into frenzy in their frantic bidding for lots and these stores, and many were the tales of fortunes made by speculators in ground leases. Going today along this street, which still swarms with shoppers on week days, I noticed here and there creeping in the familiar sign, "To lease," also have and there are banners announcing that "So-and-so will remove soon to their old location in Market street." Many signs of "To lease" there may be in the neighborhood of Market street, but there are numerous indications that the time is coming soon when they will be less frequent in the old business district, while trade deserts Van Ness avenue for its haunts of former days. Fillmore street, however, gives more signs of permanency as a secondary business street.

As for Nob Hill, never more will it be famed for the places of the "nabobs" if present indications bear true prophecy. Practically untouched for more than a year lie the prostrate ruins of the former mansions. There are no signs of their reconstruction, while here and there are placards which announce the prospective erection of apartment houses.

These are the first impressions of the visitor one year after the great disaster. Golden Gate park, the Cliff House and the seal rocks seem about all there is left of San Francisco of other days—the days of care free gaiety. They look as of old. But elsewhere on every hand are evidences of the titanic task which confronts the beautiful metropolis of the Pacific before she can recover from her travail and rehabilitate herself.

"Can she ever recover?" is the question every visitor instinctively asks himself. Among the many monuments within the city are two which help to give an answer. One is that to the Americans who conquered the Spanish fleet at Manila. Another is to the pioneers who conquered the wilderness of America's "golden west." In San Francisco's case the American spirit must triumph ultimately. But there are sore trials now and many more looming into view.

Gulls as Life Savers.

"I wouldn't no more kill a gull than I would a baby," said the sailor.

"Why not?" Because gulls have saved my life, that's why not. Gulls is life savers. They've saved the lives of thousands of seamen. They ought to all wear round their sleek white necks a pink silk ribbon with one of them there Andy Carnegie medals tied to it. Wunst, off the Orkneys, in a fog, we lost our bearn's, and we'd ha' run aground and drowned sure if the loud screamin' of the gulls on the cliffs hadn't give us timely warnin'. So it goes. Time after time in black, stormy nights, in mists and fogs, gulls' cries, as good as any fog horn, warns sailors what has lost their way off deadly coasts."

Report Current Among Railroad
Men That Ties Were Placed on the Track

OCCURRED MONDAY NIGHT

West Bound Extra Freight Said to Have Struck Obstruction
West of Pillager

According to a story said to have been brought from Staples this morning, an attempt was made to wreck a freight train on the Northern Pacific railroad between Motley and Pillager. The story, as told by a train crew that came east this morning, is that extra No. 410 west struck a pile of ties on the track at the point named. The fireman, according to reports saw the obstruction and holled to the engineer and jumped. The engineer stuck to his post and the engine being a heavy one held the rails. Neither the fireman nor engineer were hurt.

Local railroad men, when seen regarding the matter, denied all knowledge of any such incident. The men who brought the report to the city, however, are reliable parties and there is thought to be foundation for the story. The fact that the obstruction was placed on the track so early in the evening would look more like spite work than an attempt to get the passenger train, which does not pass that point until three or four hours later.

A member of the crew of the train which struck the obstruction was in the city this afternoon and in conversation with a DISPATCH representative stated that they struck two bunches of ties, one two miles east of Motley and the other one mile east of the station. In the first pile struck there were five, but the gentleman did not know the number in the second bunch. The statement was given out this afternoon that ties fell from a carload passing along, were the obstructions, but this is thought hardly probable, and may have been given out to prevent knowledge of the attempt reaching the public.

A Fortunate Texan

Mr. E. W. Goodloe, of 107 St. Louis St., Dallas, Tex., says: "In the past year I have become acquainted with Dr. King's New Life Pills, and no laxative I ever before tried so effectually disposes of malaria and biliousness. They don't grind nor gripe. 25c at H. P. Dunn & Co.'s drug store."

$5 AND COSTS

H. H. Baker Contributes That Amount for Using More Force Than Law Permits

The case of H. H. Baker, charged with assault by A. P. Cardle, was on trial Monday afternoon. Mr. Cardle swore that he had permission from Mr. Baker's brother, who was not in the city Monday, to use the pony rig which he took from in front of the meat market. A man working in the street near there heard some man give someone else permission to use the rig but could not identify the parties. As Mr. Baker admitted not only hitting Cardle, while in the rig but after he got out, and kicking him, the court had no volition but to find him guilty of assault, the law expressly providing that in case of trespass no more force shall be used than is necessary to remove the trespasser. The penalty was fixed at $5 and costs, which was paid.

"I have fired the walking-stick I've carried over 40 years, on account of a sore that resisted every kind of treatment, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; that has healed the sore and made me a happy man," writes John Garrett, of North Mills, N. C. Guaranteed for piles, burns, etc., by H. P. Dunn & Co., druggists. 25c.

Epicurean Finesse.

Two Marseillaises were discussing the best method of eating game. "Well," said one, "if it is a woodcock, I hang it up on a nail by the beak and fasten some larks onto its claws. After a week I throw away the woodcock and eat the larks, which by that time have absorbed all the flavor of the woodcock." "I do the same," replied the other, not to be outdone, "except that I throw away the larks as well as the woodcock, and eat the nail."—Bon Vivant.

Remarkable Rescue

That truth is stranger than fiction has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds. 50c and $1.00, at H. P. Dunn & Co., drug store. Trial bottle free.

Louisiana Negro Lynched.

Gibbs Landing, La., June 11.—James W. Wilson, a twenty-two-year-old negro, was shot to death and his body burned by a mob near here. It is reported that the negro while on a visit at a plantation while the white men were absent attempted a criminal assault upon the daughter of the planter. An old negro is said to have driven him away. The lynching followed within a few hours.

Fame—Trial Tomorrow

The trial of Frank Theines, for permitting minors to frequent his saloon, was taken up in municipal court this morning and a jury was drawn. The panel was made returnable at 2 o'clock this afternoon when the actual trial was taken up. The jury was as follows:

Joseph Drapau, A. P. Appgar, John Carlson, F. H. Peters, R. D. King and Hugo Kaatz.

Mary Sylvester, known as "Finland Mary" was in the municipal court this morning charged with keeping a house of ill fame. She pleaded not guilty and the hearing was set for Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and bond was placed at $100, which she left the court in charge of a policeman to try to obtain.

Wm. Ido, whose sentence in municipal court was suspended for ten days and who was to appear in court this morning failed to show up when his case was called.

Owing to the absence of Arnold Kalland, a witness for the state, who went to Duluth a few days ago and has not returned, the case cannot be completed today. Bert Mahlum was on the stand at the time of going to press.

A Midday Nap Club.

"What we need down here (Philadelphia) in the rushing office district is a midday nap club," said a lawyer of large practice recently to a reporter of the Philadelphia Record. "a place where a fellow can run in for a few winks of midday sleep without the danger of being awakened by some erratic caller. A quiet lounge, in a secluded room, every fellow to himself and a man to call you at the moment designated, and I venture the thing would be a success. Moreover, I believe a few winks of sleep in the middle of the day would do much to relieve the nervous tension under which most of us labor, prolong our lives and avert many a case of nervous prostration. I make the suggestion in all seriousness and hope soon to see it put into effect."

Everybody's Rifle Range.

The proposition to establish a government range for rifle and revolver practice merits the commendation of everybody, for it is proposed to permit civilian clubs and individuals as well as military organizations to shoot over it under proper restrictions. Just where it will be located, says Forest and Stream, will be decided by the commission of army officers appointed for the purpose, but it is probable that it will be in one of the middle Atlantic states.

POLAR DAYS AND NIGHTS.

Day, Which Is Summer, Is Not So
Bad, but the Night Is Awful.

During a polar winter the average thickness of ice on the ocean where no storms or strong tides interfere reaches six feet or more. There is really no warm season. Even during the long summer days snow still falls frequently. Clear spells are relatively warm, but, especially in the antarctic, fogs and clouds are frequent, while winds bring low temperatures.

Nevertheless the summer near the margins of the arctic zone is described in the Journal of Geography as having clean, pure, crisp air, free from dust and with little precipitation.

The monotony and darkness of the polar night is decreased a good deal by the long twilight, due to the high degree of refraction at low temperatures. The sun actually appears and disappears some days before and after the times which are geometrically set for the change.

Light from moon and stars and from the aurora also relieve the darkness. Optical phenomena of great variety, beauty and complexity are common. Solar and lunar haloes and coronae and mock suns and moons are often seen. Auroras seem to be less common and less brilliant in the antarctic than in the arctic. Sunset and sunrise colors within the polar zones are described as being extraordinarily brilliant and impressive.

Thus the north polar summer, in spite of its drawbacks, is in some respects a pleasant and healthful season. But the polar night is monotonous, depressing, repelling, an everlasting uniform snow covering, rigidity, lifelessness, silence, except for the howl of the gale or the cracking of the ice.

Small wonder that the polar night has sometimes unbalanced men's minds. The first effects are often a strong desire for sleep and indifference. Later effects have been sleeplessness and nervousness, tending in extreme cases to insanity, anaemia, digestive troubles.

Extraordinarily low winter temperatures are easily borne if the air is dry and still. Nansen notes "not very cold" at a temperature of 22 degrees when the air was still. Another arctic explorer at 9 degrees says, "It is too warm to sleep."

Zero weather seems pleasantly refreshing if clear and calm. But high relative humidity and wind, even a light breeze, give the same degree of cold a penetrating feeling of chill which may be unbearable. Thus the damper air of spring and summer usually seems much colder than the drier air of winter, although the temperatures may be the same. When exposed directly to the air, the skin burns and blisters, the lips swell and crack. Thirst has been much complained of by polar explorers and is surely due to the active evaporation from the warm body into the dry, relatively cold air.

There is no doubt that polar air is singularly free from micro organisms, a fact which is due chiefly to lack of communication with other parts of the world; hence diseases which are common in temperate zones, colds among them, are rare.

PICTURESQUE GIFT.

Fine Mountain Parks and Scenic Driveways For Colorado Springs.

General William J. Palmer, the founder of Colorado Springs, is about to present to that city a chain of picturesque parks and scenic driveways valued at $1,000,000 and covering 1,500 acres, says the New York Tribune. The biggest park in the chain is called Monument Valley park, and when it is completed it will present a delightful maze of mountain side, winding streams, silver lakes, flashing waterfalls, shaded nooks and cool pathways. It borders on the tortuous and wildly beautiful Monument creek and is easily accessible to all the inhabitants of Colorado Springs.

The work of construction was begun January, 1904, and many property owners, realizing the scope and importance of General Palmer's plans, deeded over their holdings and others were purchased. Some idea of the magnitude of the work can be obtained when it is stated that since January, 1904, the force employed on the construction of the park has not been less than 100 men and 10 teams and has reached a maximum of 407 men and 127 teams. More than 100,000 cubic yards of rock, 120,000 cubic yards of gravel, 30,000 yards of adobe, forty carloads of cement and 18,000 cubic yards of manure have been used. The grading work included the moving of a little over 900,000 cubic yards of earth and sand.

Expert landscape gardeners are doing their work with a view of taking advantage of existing trees and developing all the natural beauties of the landscape. The foliage will be varied and beautiful. About 7,000 evergreens of all kinds have been planted, also 5,000 cottonwoods, 7,000 elms, maples, box elders, locust, ash and chestnut trees. Shrubs such as lilacs, snowballs, Russian olive and others have been set out. In one spot General Palmer has placed a Colorado wild garden. More than 100 varieties of Colorado's native flowering plants and shrubs are planted in groups in such a manner that some in each bed will be in blossom in rotation the entire season.

AT JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION
President Roosevelt Delivers Two Addresses.
Norfolk, Va., June 11.—The Jamestown exposition management has determined to look upon Monday, the occasion of President Roosevelt's second visit, as the real opening. The president lost no opportunity to voice his approval of the showing made since the backward opening of the exposition on April 26.
It was Georgia day and the opening of Bulloch Hall, a replica of the early home of President Roosevelt's mother at Rosewell, Ga., erected as the Georgia state building was the feature that drew the president to the exposition for a second visit.
From the time the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and their distinguished guests were landed at the government pier until their departure every minute was occupied. The president spoke at the Georgia ceremonies from the reviewing stand and in the afternoon addressed the convention of the National Editorial association in the exposition auditorium. On both occasions he was given an enthusiastic welcome.
He visited the Georgia building, the New York building and the negro exhibit and in his drives over the grounds, thousands of people lined the streets and gave him a continuous ovation. The schedule arranged in advance was followed to the letter and when the Mayflower weighed anchor and the party started on its return trip to Washington, an unusually strenuous day closed without an untoward incident having occurred. The police arrangements for the handling of the great crowd were excellent.
The naval review in Hampton Roads, the reception of the commanders of American and foreign vessels that preceded the president's arrival at the grounds, and the military review on Lee Parade following the president's morning address were similar to those events on the opening day.

DEFENDANTS WIN OUT
Score a Point in Suit Against Mrs. Mary B. G. Eddy.
COURT ORDERS AN INQUIRY
Will Appoint a Master to Conduct Hearings to Determine Whether Mrs. Eddy Is Competent to Manage Her Own Affairs.
Concord, N. H., June 11.—The defendants in the suit brought by the "next friends" of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the aged head of the Christian Science denomination, asking for an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property, were successful in carrying a point when Judge Robert N. Chamberlain of the Merrimack superior court announced that within a week he would appoint a master to conduct hearings and take testimony to determine whether Mrs. Eddy is competent to manage her own affairs.
The proceedings were scheduled to be a hearing on a motion on the part of Mrs. Eddy and her three trustees, Henry M. Baker, Archibald McLellan and Josiah E. Fernald, to have the equity proceedings brought by the "next friends" against Mrs. Eddy's secretary, Calvin A. Frye, and nine other prominent Christian Scientists dismissed on the ground that the action was not brought in good faith.
Shortly after Mr. Streeter, who represented both the trustees and Mrs. Eddy, had begun his address to the court, he announced that he would suspend the right to bring up the legal questions involved at this time, but would agree to the immediate settlement of the matter as Mrs. Eddy's competency, inasmuch as he understood that the court wished that phase of the case disposed of.
Mr. Streeter asked that a master be appointed to conduct the hearings on the matter of Mrs. Eddy's competency, while the attorneys for the "next friends" argued that Mrs. Eddy's competency be established before a jury, or as Attorney Dewitt C. Howe of counsel for the next friends expressed it, "We wish her competency to be tried as that of any humble person would be tried."

SURPRISES THE DEFENSE
Important Ruling by Judge Dunne in the Schmitz Case.
San Francisco, June 11.—An important ruling by Judge Dunne in favor of the defense brought to a sudden and premature close the case of the prosecution against Mayor Eugene F. Schmitz for extortion. The defense, taken by surprise, was not ready to begin the introduction of evidence, so Mr. Campbell, after a fifteen minutes' conference with his associates and their client, made the opening address to the jury in behalf of the mayor and adjournment for the day was ordered.
Abraham Ruef, indicted jointly with Mayor Schmitz, and who has pleaded guilty, though paradoxically proclaiming himself innocent of the charge, will not be called by the state to testify against the city's chief executive and his former political partner. When the prosecution so unexpectedly closed its case without having called Ruef, the general idea was that he was being saved by Heney for rebuttal. But the assistant district attorney denied that.
The ruling of Judge Dunne that resulted in cutting short the state's case was the sustaining of an objection to the introduction of a mass of testimony tending to show that the mayor had made a common practice of playing fast and loose with restaurant and saloon licenses and had ordered a number of them held up out of ulterior motives. This testimony the state proposed to offer under that provision of the law permitting the people to prove the commission by the defendant of offenses similar to the one charged. In order to show his criminal intent in perpetrating the latter.

JAPS INSULT THEMSELVES
Band Plays All the Music of the "Mikado."
Chatham, Eng., June 11.—The order issued by the admiralty that the music of Sullivan's "Mikado" should not be played on British warships in order not to offend the susceptibilities of the Japanese visitors is still in force, but a curious circumstance has arisen and all Chatham is laughing over what is called "the Japanese insulting themselves." The Japanese cruiser Tsukuba is lying in the dock yard here and Sotoguchi, the bandmaster of the cruiser, has chosen Sullivan's music to play at the after dinner dances given for the entertainment of visitors. The band's repertoire, written and played by Japanese, contains all the music of the "Mikado."

John Polreis, father of the dead girl, testified that she always had been in good health.

WITHOUT FOUNDATION.
Report That President Cabrera of Guatemala Was Assassinated.
Mexico City, June 11.—Thus far it has been learned here that the report which came from Oaxaca to the effect that President Cabrera had been assassinated was without foundation.
The Associated Press received a dispatch from Oaxaca which said: "The daughters of former President Barrundia of Guatemala, who live in this city, are said to have received a telegram from Guatemala saying President Cabrera had been assassinated, but they are out of the city and the man in charge of their affairs and authorized to receive and open telegrams has not received a telegram from Guatemala."
The report created a great furore in this capital, some of the papers getting out midnight editions on the story.

Both the officials of the consulate and the district attorney maintain the greatest secrecy as to the matters discussed at the conference or contained in the dispatch from Japan, the district attorney confining himself to the admission that his report embodying the exhaustive evidence relating to the restaurant wrecking episode had been forwarded and would be in the hands of the cabinet.

Washington, June 11.—Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture was the principal witness before the supreme court of the District of Columbia in the trial of former Associate Statistician Holmes on the charge of prematurely divulging cotton crop reports. He also questioned the secretary about charges against himself.

THE OSAGE MONSTER.
How a Steamboat Whistle Affected Missouri Pioneers.
STORY OF A HISTORIC HUNT.
Armed For the Foe, the Frightened but Determined Old Settlers Sought the Ferocious Beast With the Fearful, Screeching Voice.
The first steamboat that ever turned her prow against the muddy Osage waters was the Flora Jones in the spring of 1844. There was no commercial club in those days to stimulate river traffic, no telegraph or telephone to herald to the hardy pioneers the approach of the boat—only the unearthly shrill screech of a banshee-like whistle, enough to blanch the cheek of the simple minded folk who had lived far from the world's progress.
The little boat went up as far as Harmony, Mo., in Bates county. History records the fact that when the Flora Jones puffed her way along the St. Clair county shores and the wall of her siren was tossed back and forth by the limestone bluffs many of the old settlers were not only frightened figuratively out of their boots, but literally out of their homes. Matthew Arbuckle, a pioneer, tradition tells us, was plowing in his field about a mile from the river when the wall of that whistle struck his ear. He unhitched his horse from the plow, managed to get on its back and, wild with terror, struck for the hills. In one hour he was at Papinville, fifteen miles distant, the horse white with foam, the rider white with terror. He had barely strength to tell of "an awful animal" from which he had made his escape. He had not seen the fearful beast, he confessed, but he had heard its voice, by which he knew it to be a monster of terrific proportions.
Arbuckle's neighbors were brave and, though much disturbed by his account, determined upon a campaign of extermination. They had defended their homes against Indians, and they reasoned that no wild animal, however ferocious, could withstand their rifles. They gathered at Uncle John Whitley's. He had seen service under Jackson at New Orleans. His home was up the tortuous stream from Arbuckle's farm.
The next morning a crowd of hardy pioneers, with guns and dogs, were ready at Uncle John's. The gallant band numbered among its members Uncle John Whitley, James Breckenridge, Benjamin Morris, William Bacon, Hamilton Morris, Benjamin Burch, William Roark, Frank Roark, Benjamin Snyder, Snowden Morris and Matthew Arbuckle.
They were agreed that there should be undertaken a quest for the mysterious monster threatening their homes and families.
Just before the signal to start was given Mattie, a daughter of Whitley's, went down to the river, 300 yards distant, for water. In her absence the Flora Jones, which had tied up for the night at a bend in the river below, again sounded the terror inspiring whistle.
"Charge, men!" roared Whitley, seizing his gun. "Matt went to the river for water, and I reckon she's dead afore now!"
The crowd rushed to the river, determined to rescue the girl if she was yet alive. But Matt, it is hardly necessary to state, was met on the way. She was headed homeward, her hair streaming behind and her face blanched with fear.
With their weapons ready for instant action the determined hunters continued riverward. The crew of the Flora Jones, proud of her whistle, continued to sound it at frequent intervals, and its reverberations rang from bluff to bluff unceasingly. Each fresh blast added to the uneasiness of the band of settlers. Frequent councils were held. The failure of the dogs to take the scent nonplused them.
The hunters scoured the Osage thickets all day. Breckenridge lost faith in bounds and declared that he would go to St. Louis for Newfoundland. Meanwhile the Flora Jones had proceeded up the river to Harmony, and her whistle was no longer heard. As night came on a storm broke, and the hunters took refuge in a cave.
With the return of dawn there began again the hideous wail of the mysterious monster. The Flora Jones was making an early start on her return trip down the river. Nearer and nearer sounded the whistle, until the hunters, who had tumbled hastily from their cave, could distinguish a puffing and blowing, supposed to be the snorts of the advancing foe.
The moment of decisive action seemed at hand. The hunters rushed to the river bank. Each selected a tree to stand behind and looked to the prying of his gun.
An instant later the Flora Jones rounded a bend and loomed into view. Upon her deck was a gay crowd of passengers watching the early sunrise flooding the water with rosy light. Uncle John Whitley, Jimmy Breckenridge and their band of heroes were too astonished to answer the friendly hails as the boat swept down to the next bend, her whistle mocking their past fears.
Little was said as the hunters tracked homeward. Unostentatiously each sought out his home. And so ended the historic hunt for the monster of the Osage valley.—Kansas City Star.
